

Storyboard for Patriot Act: The Home Version — P. 1

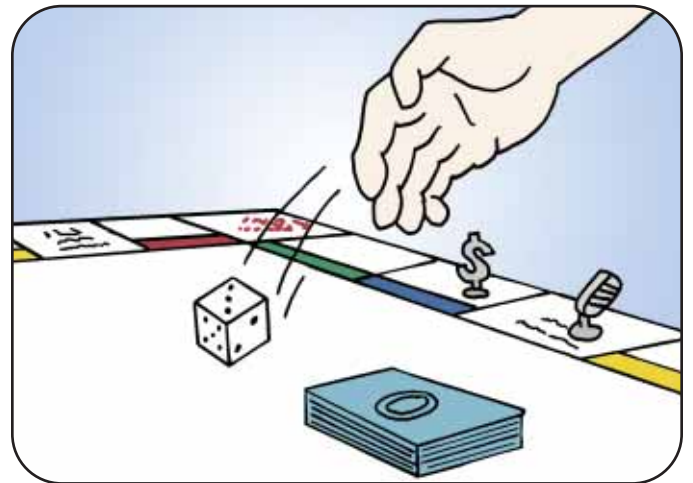

Frame 1:
From the people who brought you “JINGO” comes the new game that’s taking over the Nation...
(view of family gathering around table)

Frame 2:
It’s “Patriot Act: The Home Version!”
(camera zooms in on game box)

Frame 3:
“Neat! Let’s play!”
(child showing excitement)

Frame 4:
Players get to do their part as Patriotic Americans by giving up their Civil Liberties to protect the country against terrorism.
(image of boy rolling die and moving forward on game board to “War Rally”)

Storyboard for Patriot Act: The Home Version — P. 2

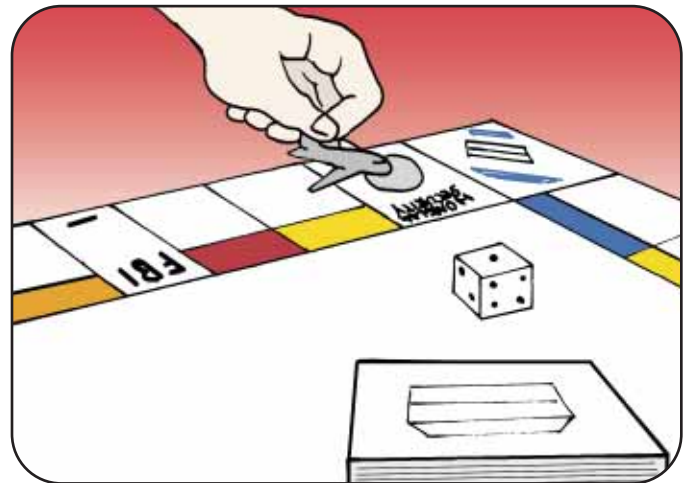

Frame 5:
(boy lands on “Pro-War Rally” and exclaims)
“Cool! I’m at a pro-war rally...”
(Player then turns to older sister and snickers:)
“...better prove your Patriotism!”

Frame 6:
(Father rolls, moves ahead and groans:) “Oh no, I’m stuck at the airport.”
(mom leans in and says:) “Looks like you’re going to miss your flight, dear.”

Frame 7:
Players race around the board, losing Civil Liberties.
(Girl lands on space and says)
“Wanted for questioning! I’m going to lose a Civil Liberty... unless I turn someone in...” (as she says this, she turns looking to Mohammed, who begins to get worried).

Frame 8:
The player to make it around the board with the most civil liberties intact wins...
(image shows players advancing, and moving backwards; in back ground players exclaim “Wiretaps!”)

Frame 9:
“Investigating my medical records?”

Frame 10:
“What do you mean I can’t see a lawyer?!”

Frame 11:
... but beware of secret detentions!
(boy’s brown-skinned friend loses all his CLs on turn)
“I lost all my Civil Liberties!”

Frame 12:
(boy turns to friend shaking his head)
“Uh-oh Mo... looks like it’s Guantanamo Bay for you!”
(everyone else laughs!)

Storyboard for Patriot Act: The Home Version — P. 4

Frame 13:
Take it from John Ashcroft “Willfully surrendering your Constitutional rights has never been this much fun!”
(John Ashcroft proudly endorsing product)

Frame 14:
“Patriot Act: The Home Version” — the game that gambles with your freedom!
(shows family all waving American flags, little Mohammed stands quietly bound and gagged.)